Dr. Kubik Named Top Doc by Pittsburgh Magazine

RHS Medical Director Appears on Magazine List for the Fourth Time

PITTSBURGH – April 29, 2008 – Medical Director and co-founder of Reproductive Health Specialists (RHS) Dr. Carolyn Kubik was named one of the best in her field by Pittsburgh Magazine in its annual “Top Doctors” issue. Dr. Kubik was one of only two reproductive endocrinologists in the area to be featured in the issue.

Each year, Pittsburgh Magazine surveys thousands of health professionals in the Pittsburgh area to find out which doctors they would entrust with a family member who had a specific medical problem. This is the fourth year that Dr. Kubik was recommended by her peers. She previously appeared on the list in 2007, 2006 and 2002.

As Medical Director of RHS, Dr. Kubik oversees aspects of quality assurance and patient care and education. Along with Dr. Judith Albert, she co-founded RHS in 2000 to help patients have a baby using a holistic approach.

Before co-founding RHS, Dr. Kubik was the first woman to serve as Administrative Chief Resident of the OB/GYN Residency Program at UPMC’s Magee-Womens Hospital. She later served as Medical Director of the Assisted Reproductive Technology Program and Director of the Division of Reproductive Endocrinology.

Reproductive Health Specialists, Inc. (RHS) is the region’s only independent, women-owned and operated reproductive endocrinology and fertility center focused on one goal: helping every patient to have a baby. The practice has two locations: Monroeville and Wexford.
